Special Session Hopes to Finish Work in Week; Hear Governor's Message.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb., 23. -- In attempt to reach some conclusion on investigations, the house democrats caucused today, but ended the session without fetting anywhere. They discussed Campbell Russell and his criticism of the governor's parole office. It is presible that another caucus will be held tomorrow morning. As the house adjourned until tomorrow afternoon, some of the caucus members wanted to start out right new and investigate. Others were more cautious. An attempt was made to record the sentiment of the members, but this failed of any definiteness. It is believed, however, that if anything is the done with Russell all there will be it is to require him to proceed ba ic it is to require him to proceed under provisions of rule No. 50, adopted by the house in 1915 relative to investigations. That requires that where a person has anything to complain of it must be presented to the investigating committee by affidavit. This would compel Russell to bring his evidence before the committee and the latter would be its own judge and the latter would be its own judge if an investigation were warranted. According to a poll of the senate members on the weman suffrage amendment, only 20 votes are conceded by the opposition to be in favor of ratification of it. Nineteen are counted among the opposition who will vote against ratification, but a number will vote to submit it to a referendum. Among the number who will vote against, ratus who will vote against, ratus who will vote against, ratus who will vote to ratify are several who already have expressed themselves as willing to submit it to the people, but they will vote for it in the shape it comes to them first.

The committee on arranging legislative work for the two houses agreed on the program this afternoon. The house should introduce the suffrage amendment, while the sense will take care of the appropriation of the suffrage amendment amendment.

Barnett's marriage involves a legal tangle of contemplated gifts totaling nearly $1,000,000, which farnett has signified his willingness to make. It was while Barnett was standing before Justice of the Peace Charles T. Bickett in Coffeyville today with a married Youple from Kansas City for witnesses that the National Surety company, who wrote the bends for Barbett's guardian and the cashler of the Indian agency here, obtained an injunction before Federal Judge Hobert L. Williams restraining the guardian or the Hidian officials from giving away any part of the Indian's fortune. Barnett returned Saurday from Washington, where he had enjoyed himself in the national zoo and talked with Indian Commissioner Cato Sells and other officials regarding donations totaling nearly $1,500,000, which Barpett wishes to make. Indian Superintendent Gabe E. Parker, who re-Burneti's marriage involves a
